

ABSTRACT

A planter receptacle for suspension from the railing of a deck, porch, or patio. The planter receptacle hangs from the railing top and at least partially enwraps the railing balusters to stabilize the planter receptacle. The position of the planter receptacle can be adjusted to 5 accommodate the vertical height of flowers and plants, and improve viewing from both sides of the railing throughout the growing season. The planter receptacle can be constructed and finished to coordinate in appearance with the railing or the structure to which the railing is attached.
